Civil Defense Hospital May Locate in Hope

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Rep. Dale Alford (D-Ark.) notified the Log Cabin Democrat Friday that two more Civil Defense emergency hospitals would be located in Arkansas. Newport and Hope are prospective sites.

Alford told Edidor Joe McGee he had learned of the Civil Defense Agency's plan through Regional Director W. W. Wilson in Washington.

Arkansas already has six of the emergency hospitals, which can be moved to the scene of any disaster and set up within hours. Two are at Conway, where state Civil Defense headquarters are located, and one each at Clarksville, Forrest City, Warren and Harrison.

The hospitals can be used in the event of enemy attack or catastrophic natural disaster.

Macmillan and Adenauer in Agreement

BY HERB ALTSCHULL

BONN, Germany (AP) — British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer have reached full agreement on Berlin, the German question and European security, a German government spokesman said today.

The statement came after Macmillan and Adenauer wound up their talks at a morning session of more than two hours. Only an interpreter was present.

Macmillan arrived Thursday from talks with French President Charles de Gaulle in Paris. He goes to the United States next week for conferences with President Eisenhower.

Apparently the French and West German governments overruled any ideas the British may have had to tense the Berlin crisis by proposing a wholesale withdrawal of troops from central Europe.

Macmillan obviously sought to quiet West German fears that his recent mission to Moscow had raised the prospect of "disengagement" as an Allied policy.

Bonn press chief Tilly von Eckardt told a news conference that the two heads of government were agreed on the procedures in the coming weeks.

"No differences exist," he said. British Foreign Office spokesman Peter Hope concurred.

The agreement followed a period of considerable German coolness and misgiving over Macmillan's visit to Moscow.

Some West German sources had indicated privately there was fear Macmillan might give way on some points other Western partners regarded as vital without getting anything from the Soviets in return.

Asked about the Bonn government's attitude, Von Eckardt said it had always regarded the Macmillan trip as useful, but now it regarded it as having been "extremely useful."

Nuclear Tests By Russians Are Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last October's nuclear tests by the Soviets produced a record rise in the radioactive debris in the stratosphere, says Dr. Willard F. Libby.

Libby, scientist member of the Atomic Energy Commission said the rise was tremendous — the greatest in all the history of weapons testing by the Soviets, Americans and British.

At the same time Libby made public the theory of another American scientist that Soviet nuclear tests in polar regions may present a greater fallout hazard to a large part of the world than the equatorial tests of the United States and Britain.

Libby said this theory, however, is still considered tentative, even by its originator — Dr. E. A. Marolf of the Air Force's Cambridge (Mass.) Research Center.

The AEC fallout specialist in a speech delivered Friday night for him at the University of Washington in Seattle by an AEC associate, devoted his remarks mainly to an effort to learn more precisely how fallout becomes distributed in the stratosphere, how it descends — and at what rate.

He said "care and caution must be taken about the matter of additional radioactive contamination."

Weather

Considerable cloudiness with a few thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight. Cooler in the west increases as the dominant factor.

Fairchild Is Acclaimed for His Recordings, One of His Many Techniques

Authority on Planes, Cameras, Graphic Arts

This is the third and last of a series of copyrighted articles just published by the Christian Science Monitor of Boston, on which the copyright has been released for publication in Hope — home town of Klipsch & Associates, world-famous electronics firm.

Klipsch & Associates are holding Open House Sunday from 2 to 9 p.m. at their new downtown offices, 116 N. Louisiana Street.

Today's story is by Don Davis, young American high-fidelity specialist who took a "state-of-the-art" high fidelity system to the Brussels World Fair last summer and won the plaudits of all who heard the system at the United States Pavilion. Mr. Davis' subject today is Sherman M. Fairchild, president of Fairchild Recording Equipment Co.

Reaction of Legislators to Their Work

BY JOHN F. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The 2nd General Assembly of Arkansas may find itself remembered for the things it did not do, rather than for what it accomplished.

"We didn't pass any new taxes, and we wouldn't let the Highway Commission back into politics," might be a consensus of legislators who finished their biennial task yesterday.

Rejection of several proposed tax increases, and the House's adamant refusal to accept Senate legislation restricting the Highway Commission were called accomplishments by a majority of some two dozen legislators questioned by The Associated Press after the session ended.

Among positive accomplishments most prominently mentioned were reworking of the reassessment program, creation of the Retirement Fund, Inc., and adoption of uniform insurance securities and vehicle codes.

Strangely, not one of those interviewed mentioned, critically or otherwise, Gov. Orval E. Faubus' anti-integration laws setting up tuition grants for students who refuse to attend integrated schools.

Woodruff Rep. Jack Oakes cited a series of changes in the 1955 property reassessment law as the most significant accomplishment.

"We saved a program which is good for the entire state," he said, "those who would have killed it didn't fully understand it."

However, Sen. Doug Bradley of Jonesboro criticized reassessment changes, contending that nothing was done to restrict school districts which refuse to lower tuition in the face of higher assessments.

"We'll be fighting this problem again in 1961 unless the school districts straighten it out on the local level," Bradley said.

It was a good session for the taxpayer," said Garland Rep. Ray S. Smith Jr. "Our budget work is in line with the money we have."

There was no major tax increase although many were proposed, said Sen. Jack Shelton of Monticello. "It shows the Legislature fell the temper of the people."

Most of the proposed tax increases met defeat in the Senate. The House beat down a bill to increase truck license fees but most of the tax measures introduced by the House never came to a vote.

The Arkansas Highway Commission scored a major victory in the closing moments of the session," said Hot Spring Rep. Dewey Stiles. "This showed the Legislature realizes that the people are staunchly behind the Mack-Blackwell Amendment."

Stiles, head of the labor delegation in the House, said labor generally got the short end of the stick this session.

"We passed one good bill for labor, the one raising unemployment benefits," Stiles said. "But our minimum wage and prevailing wage proposals went down. And the law cutting off unemployment payments to strikers hurt."

Cleveland Rep. Raymond May and Perry Rep. Paul Van Dalsen cited the strong resistance to tax increases as the dominant factor.

Ike Will Report to Nation on Berlin Crisis

BY ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's report to the nation Monday night on the Berlin situation will contain no surprises and set forth no new policies, informed sources predicted today.

The talk could be regarded mainly as an educational effort, the sources said, in a move to put the Berlin situation into perspective at the President's sees.

Eisenhower's decision to go on the air was reported to have been prompted in part by continuing contentions among Democrats in Congress that the nation's defenses are inadequate to meet the situation.

The White House announced late Friday the President will speak from his office for 30 minutes over all major television and radio networks starting at 9:30 p.m. EST Monday.

Eisenhower is expected to stress again American determination to stand firmly with its allies in the face of Soviet pressures. But he also was reported ready to make clear his willingness to ease tension by negotiations toward solving the entire German issue.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty asked whether any new development in the Berlin situation had prompted Eisenhower to speak, replied "No, sir."

The address will be the first such nation-wide report on a foreign policy situation since last September 9 when Eisenhower discussed Red China's campaign to force Chinese Nationalist troops off Quemoy Island.

News that the President had scheduled the address brought re-action today from some members of Congress.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) urged Eisenhower to tell the American people frankly and candidly, "if there is a real danger of war over Berlin."

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) in a separate interview said the President should be frank.

He should spell out very precisely what our position is regarding Berlin as well as that of Western Allies in negotiations ahead.

Home Condemned in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A home and a lot purchased by a Negro in the all-white suburb of Rutherford has been condemned by the Board of Education.

It is an unusual field. Its conception and growth is due to the drive of one man — Sherman Mills Fairchild — and, as with any business, its products mirror his personality and interests.

Mr. Fairchild's varied background reflects talents and accomplishments in an extremely wide technical field. Precision cameras, aerial mapping, electronic devices, photo engraving, airplanes, jet engines and data recordings, are only some of the many areas in which he is currently actively interested. His insatiable curiosity in things technical has ranged from aerial photography to the design and manufacture of indoor tennis courts as well as to the recording of some of his favorite music.

Operation Specialized:

Originally the company was part of Fairchild Camera Corporation but some years ago it achieved the status of an independent company and more recently that of an entirely separate corporation which has been operating ever since under Mr. Fairchild's personal direction.

His approach to audio products design simply is "design the best equipment that is technically possible." As the name Fairchild Recording indicates, the company began by making equipment for recording sound.

"We'll be fighting this problem again in 1961 unless the school districts straighten it out on the local level," Bradley said.

It was a good session for the taxpayer," said Garland Rep. Ray S. Smith Jr. "Our budget work is in line with the money we have."

There was no major tax increase although many were proposed, said Sen. Jack Shelton of Monticello. "It shows the Legislature fell the temper of the people."

Underground Emerging on Cyprus

(Editor's Note: With pence restored to Cyprus members of the Greek underground fighting arm which kept the Mediterranean island in turmoil for four years are beginning to emerge into the open. How did this small force keep up to 30,000 British troops baffled all this time? Webb McKinley, Associated Press chief of bureau in Istanbul has been on Cyprus nearly two weeks seeking the answer. Here is his report.)

By WEBB MCKINLEY

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — EOKA's war is over and the boys in the headlong home.

The wily youths whom Britain so recently called terrorists now are hailed as heroes on the streets of Nicosia.

They do not look fierce. It is hard to imagine one padding silently along an alley gun in hand or waiting for the right instant to set off a land mine on a mountain road.

The look more like young clerks, accountants, students, electricians, lawyers or farmers — which in fact they once were.

But the four-year war they fought in EOKA the Greek Cypriots underground to free Cyprus from Britain was tough and ruthless. A total of 393 killings were attributed to EOKA. More than half the victims were Greek Cypriots civilians marked as traitors to the cause of Enosis the union of Cyprus with Greece.

EOKA did not win Enosis. But on the advice of its leadership it accepted the plan for eventual independence for Cyprus.

The hatreds born in the struggle over into intercommunal fighting between Greeks and Turkish Cypriots that took another 115 lives. All in all including those killed by British security forces the war left 601 dead and 1200 wounded.

On the face of it EOKA was battling hopeless odds. Its own hard core centered in the mountains probably never numbered more than 50 men although the crowd was told that 90 percent of petroleum products are carried by Teamsters.

Hoffa hinted at a shutdown of Standard Oil service stations requiring bulk deliveries, reminding Teamsters members recognize their obligation to fellow Teamsters who are in trouble.

The center of attraction in Columbia is the magnificent State House, one of the few buildings left standing when the city burned in 1865. It bears scars from direct hits made by General Sherman's artillery, now marked by bronze stars on the west and south walls.

Bronze Palmetto

The State House and its spacious grounds hold many monuments and monuments. Most interesting to us were the Confederate Relic Room and Museum and the unique, life-sized bronze palmetto tree.

The palmetto, which grows along the seacoast and now has been transplanted inland, is the honored state tree because it was a palmetto log fortress that stopped the cannon balls of the British fleet in 1776 at Fort Moultrie, for the first American victory in the Revolution.

Full brings football excitement to Columbia. But you also will want to park your car and walk around the campus quadrangle of the University of South Carolina for a study in contrasts. The buildings of the early 1800's have an atmosphere of the Old South, especially the South Carolina Library, designed by Robert Mills, architect of the Washington Monument and the U.S. Treasury building. Then prepare to be stunned by new campus additions, such as the men's dormitory, a starkly modern structure with walls of gridded blocks, it has no windows in sight above the first floor.

Other highlights for the visitor are Woodrow Wilson's white frame boyhood home, open as a memorial museum; the First Baptist Church, where the Secession Convention met in 1860; and the Columbia Museum of Art. They have justifiable pride in the Kress Collection of Italian Renaissance paintings, including a Titian and a Botticelli.

Taylor's retirement and his replacement by Lemnitler would facilitate the retention of Air Force Gen. Nathan F. Twining as chairman of the Joint Chiefs.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, was asked today about the various reports on the Joint Chiefs makeup, but replied he didn't know anything about them.

That lucky person could be you!

Soviet Can Be Deterred in Final Showdown

By JOHN H. AVERILL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union can be deterred from a final showdown at this time, predicts Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, if the United States is determined to go to war if necessary for Berlin.

"We must be willing to go all the way down the road," says the Army chief of staff. "We can turn back at any point."

Taylor advocated this stand Wednesday in a top secret meeting before the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

A heavily censored transcript of his remarks was released Friday night by subcommittee Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.)

Asked if this country has clear-cut plans to meet the Berlin crisis in any eventuality that may confront us, Taylor said:

"The Joint Chiefs of Staff do."

Taylor, himself a member of the Joint Chiefs, expressed conviction the United States and its European allies have the strength to carry out those plans.

Recalling the Soviets' blockade of Berlin in 1948, Taylor noted that many top military leaders now regard the U.S.-Berlin airlift as a mistake. Forces should have been tried, Taylor said, when the Soviets blocked ground routes into Berlin.

Brookwood PTA Met
In School Auditorium

Brookwood PTA met Wednesday in the school auditorium with Mrs. Arch Wylie presiding over the business session. The following members were elected for the 1959-60 school year: President — Mrs. Arch Wylie; Vice-President — Mrs. Jim James; Secretary — Mrs. John Randolph; Treasurer — Mrs. Phinias Herlin; Parliamentarian — Mrs. Hendrix Spraggins; Historian — Mrs. Wallace Monroe.

The group also voted to give twenty-five dollars to the Exceptional Children's Fund.

Mrs. Wylie introduced Mrs. E. R. Brown, who told the members of the outstanding work Mrs. George W. Wright had done for Brookwood School and community. Mrs. Brown presented Mrs. Wright with the life membership in the PTA.

The meeting was then turned over the sixth grade pupils, who gave a play on, "Safety."

Mrs. Andrews and Mrs. Brown's room won the room count.

KILLER AMONG US

© 1959 by Robert Martin

THE STORY: While visiting Howard Ackerman, injured executive of the Buskey plant, Jim Bennett meets Mrs. Ackerman. Bennett is a private detective investigating suspected sabotage. After visiting Ackerman, Bennett takes Mrs. Ackerman home.

XVIII

It was cool and dusky, inside and there was the smell of furniture polish and roses. The flowers, huge red ones, were in a vase on a table before the partially drawn drapes of a huge window overlooking the street. Mrs. Ackerman took my hat. "Please sit down, Mr. Bennett. By the way, what's your first name?"

I sat in a deep, broad-caned chair. "Jim."

"Mine's Clarissa, but most people call me Clare. Shall we use first names?"

"By all means."

"Would you like a highball, Jim, or a cocktail?" She removed the little blue hat and tingers fluttered to her hair. The severe hair-do, now that she'd removed the hat, gave her gaunt face a sort of ascetic beauty.

"Bourbon will be fine," I said, "with water or soda."

"Coming up, sir." She smiled gaily and left the room.

Clarissa Ackerman returned with a silver tray bearing two tall glasses and two folded napkins. She handed me a glass and napkin. I placed the napkin on one knee and poised the glass, observing the deep amber color of the contents. I guessed that it was about half whisky, stronger than I liked it. I waited for the ice to dilute the whisky a little. Clarissa Ackerman sat facing me on a divan, her slim legs crossed.

"Well," she said brightly, "Isn't this nice?"

I smiled and raised my glass.

"To your husband's early recovery."

"Must we discuss Howard?" She drank from her glass.

"Sorry." I gazed around the room. "You have a lovely home."

She lowered her glass. "It's all I've got." Her voice was brittle.

"No children?" I drank from my glass and suppressed a shudder.

She drank deeply. "No children, and no hope. Are you married, Jim?"

"No."

"Don't ever get married, Jim. Look at me. I love my husband, but he doesn't love me."

She lifted her glass and drank. I thought sadly that she was a frustrated and a gimp woman. Why had she asked me here? To prove to herself that she was still attractive.

She must have seen something in my expression, because she added: "It was nice of you to come in with me, but please don't feel that you must stay."

I put down my glass and stood up. "Thank you very much."

She rose from the divan and came close, holding her glass to one side, and smiled up at me. Her slender hips moved subtly beneath the tight blue dress and she lifted her face, her eyes were closed. "Kiss me," she whispered, "please, please."

She came toward me, toffering on her slender legs, and pressed against me, stroking her fingers digging into my shoulder. I held her. Presently she stopped sobbing and stepped away her face averted. "You'd better leave, I don't know what possessed me. You're an utter stranger."

I went. There was nothing I could do for her, nothing that would help her. I just left and thought wryly that if Howard Ackerman was finding solace with Doctor Jim or Donovan, perhaps he should have blamed me more.

I stopped, and turned away before I reached the door. I turned, I turned, I turned my back for it.

I stopped at a service station. While the attendant was filling the gas tank I entered a pay phone booth called the commercial laboratory in Cleveland and asked for Stanley Popkin the chemist. "I said, "Stan this is Jim Bennett. Did you receive that envelope I sent you?"

"Yes this morning. We ran all the standard tests Jim. It's residue of blood, all right, mixed with cement particles, but I'm sorry I can't tell you if it's human or animal."

"Okay" I said, "If it had been story within his New York house. Here a small, full-time staff is actively at work on problems of particular interest in the audio field. A visit to the lab is extremely interesting. One finds an extensive recording installation for making test discs and tapes and a complete playback system ideally suited for a variety of listening tests. Prototypes of unusual audio test gear would also be noted.

It has long been Mr. Fairchild's idea that while good engineering is necessary for the initial design of audio components, it is equally important that actual listening tests be used to finally judge the merits of the resulting products.

For this purpose, Mr. Fairchild's listening room in his New York home is often the scene of informal gatherings where audiophiles meet to judge and evaluate new equipment.

Many people find it rather unusual that a company so steeped in engineering tradition would use the elementary procedures of listening to judge an audio product, but this is typical of Mr. Fairchild's approach.

"In the final analysis people are going to listen to our equipment, not test it with meters," he explains. The end result must be equipment that performs flawlessly—as fine as the art of engineering will permit. For this reason I am always eager to have critical musicians listen to our equipment."

Fairchild Recording is perhaps best known in the high fidelity field for its moving coil cartridges. The 225A, the new 230, and now the dual rotating coil stereo cartridge, are considered by many as unequalled phonograph transducers.

While many other types of pickups have been considered and built by their engineering laboratories, Fairchild still regards the practically distortion free, essentially linear moving coil transducer as the best possible practical design, even though it is not the easiest or the cheapest to manufacture.

Mr. Fairchild states, "Our aim in the high fidelity field can be simply stated—to meticulously design the finest engineering product that can be built, to manufacture it with utmost care to style it so that the customer can derive the greatest possible pleasure from its use, and to have it operate simply without repeated servicing."

She must have seen something in my expression, because she added: "It was nice of you to come in with me, but please don't feel that you must stay."

134 miles away before I reached the door. I turned, I turned, I turned my back for it.

I stopped at a service station. While the attendant was filling the gas tank I entered a pay phone booth called the commercial laboratory in Cleveland and asked for Stanley Popkin the chemist. "I said, "Stan this is Jim Bennett. Did you receive that envelope I sent you?"

"Yes this morning. We ran all the standard tests Jim. It's residue of blood, all right, mixed with cement particles, but I'm sorry I can't tell you if it's human or animal."

"Okay" I said, "If it had been

CARNIVAL

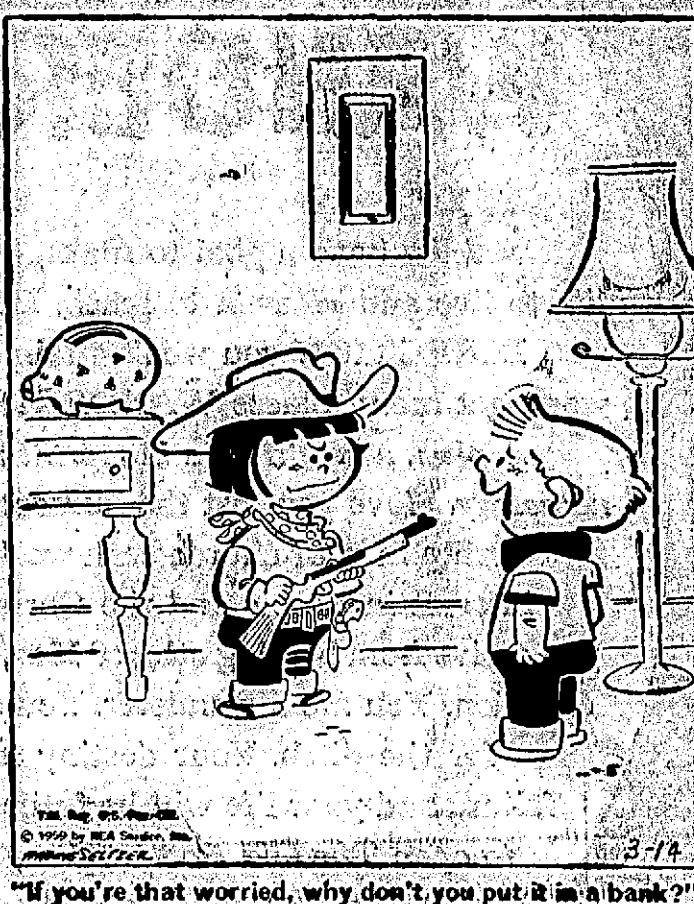

By Dick Turner

"We never suspected BURGLARS might have ransacked the house until we remembered Junior and his friends are on an overnight hike at scout camp!"

SWEETIE PIE

By Nadine Seltzer

"If you're that worried, why don't you put it in a bank?"

SIDE GLANCES

By Golbraith

"But, Edna, if you'd only TRY shuffleboard I'm sure it wouldn't bore you!"

THE STORY OF MARTHA WAYNE

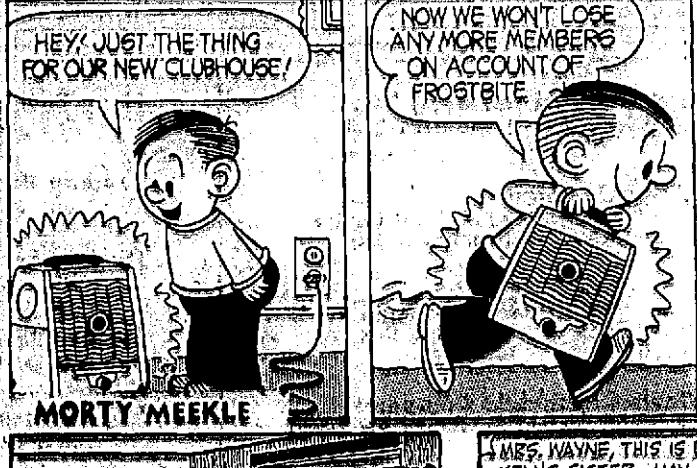

FLASH GORDON

"SWEET SISTER" — Formosan movie star Laun Lu poses demurely near Taipei before starting a nude bathing scene. It's all part of an historical film called "Shui Pa Yee's Love." Laun Lu is known to fans as "sweet sister."

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

BILL OF FARE — Its mouth wide open, this pelican in the London (England) Zoo gives a good idea of what many a fish sees in its last moments. In this case, though, the pelican seems to be trying to swallow the camera. PHOTOGRAPH BY BILL

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It

Are You WANDERING

We have a goal to make, a peace to seek, a life to live and Heaven to reach. But without DIRECTION you won't attain any of them. You won't get many places WANDERING around. A plan, a program, a blueprint is absolutely necessary. Have you lost the influence of hour of worship in your church each week? Have you lost interest in people and the Christian pleasure you derive from helping others? If so, you are without direction. You are a wanderer. You are headed for the ditch. Your destiny is a miserable failure and your life will be futile. You need to open The Old Book and read a few of those signboards printed in red.

Stop wandering! Let God have a talk with you!

You In The Church
The Church In You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.
